

Postdoctoral researcher interested in applying for Juan de la Cierva contracts

We are actively searching candidates with an academic degree in biosanitary sciences who are eligible for a Juan de la Cierva contract to train in Nutritional Epidemiology.

Description of the position /

The successful candidate will develop its work in the following research áreas:

- The impact of lifestyles in the development of multimorbidity in older adults. A longitudinal approach.
- Identification of pathways of the aging process, and their dietary, social and metabolomics determinants. The AGE_path study.

Academic requirements /

Candidates must have completed a PhD in areas related to epidemiology and have an advanced level of English.

Working environment /

The successful candidate will join a team of epidemiological researchers, made up of senior lecturers, junior lecturers, postdoctoral researchers and other PhD students. The workplaces will be the Medicine School of the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid and IMDEA Food. In addition, the applicant will have the possibility to collaborate with researchers associated to this group in different international institutions.

How to apply /

Interested applicants should send their CV together with a cover/motivation letter to the following email addresses:

Dr Esther López García

Preventive Medicine, Public Health and Microbiology Department
Medicine School. Universidad Autónoma de Madrid esther.lopez@uam.es